

The Innovation Imperative

The Need for Change in the 21st Century Jewish World

A workshop for communal leaders

With

Dr. David Bryfman

Director of the New Center for Collaborative Leadership

At the Jewish Education Project, New York

Wednesday, November 16, 2011

Adath Israel Congregation

6:45 dinner

7:45 presentation

David Bryfman is currently the Director of the New Center for Collaborative leadership at The Jewish Education Project. David completed his Ph.D. in Education and Jewish Studies at NYU focusing on the development of identity among Jewish adolescents in formal and informal Jewish settings. A large part of David's research and work today focuses on the intersection of technology and Jewish life and learning. Prior to his current position David worked in formal and informal settings in Australia, Israel and North America. He is also a graduate of the Wexner Graduate fellowship program and also serves as an educational consultant for the iCenter.

This program is sponsored by a grant from the Jewish Federation and is coordinated by the Principals' Council and the Board of Rabbis.

Please contact Anne Berman-Waldorf, educator@bethchaim.org, to indicate your attendance plans.

Innovate Interface Invigorate

The New "I"'s of Our Jewish Community